• WHAT IS A DSP? •

Direct Support Professionals are highly personable and caring individuals who offer specialized support for men and women with intellectual and/or developmental disabilities (IDD). DSPs are not synonymous with caregivers; evident of their title, caregivers take care of individuals who are unable to do so for themselves. On the other hand, DSPs support and enable individuals with disabilities to make independent decisions as capable contributors of their community. DSPs perform a wide range of tasks that may overlap with different healthcare support professionals, but one thing is clear-- DSPs equip our Participants with the toolkit to reach their full potential.
